Obituary of Mrs. Amandus Studer

Mrs. Amandus Studer was born in Loderingen, Germany on June 10, 1820 and died at the home of her son Frank, on January 30, 1908, aged 87 years, 7 months and 20 days. She was united in marriage to Amandus Studer in August, 1842. They emigrated to Canada in 1847 moving from there to Illinois in 1870 and to Iowa in 1874, locating at Ackley from which place they moved to Wesley in 1883. To them were born 10 children, all of whom are living but one.

Deceased leaves to mourn her loss 156 descendants, consisting of nine children 76 grandchildren. The following are the surviving children: August, Joseph, Nathan, Mrs. George Spengler, Mrs. Mary Paul, Amandus, Gregory, Mrs. Frank Immerfall and Frank who were all in attendance at the funeral except August who was unable to be in attendance due to sickness in his family.

The funeral services were held at the St. Benedict Catholic Church Saturday morning conducted by Father Erdman and the remains were laid to rest in the St. Benedict Cemetery beside those of her husband who died in July, 1904.

Mrs. Studer was a devout Catholic and devoted much time to her church.

The great destroyer had placed his signet on her brow and today the hundreds who Page 16 loved her living, mourn her dead.

In the presence of such a sorrow how cold and impotent are words and how double deep would be the grief over the grave did not the rainbow of Christian hope span the dark gulf between time and eternity, and such pure bright lives inspire the belief that here is a better world beyond where, filled from the corroding cares of earth, the good and true and reunited "after life's fulfill fever".

Mrs. Studer remained conscious to the last, and although fully aware that her life was near its close, she manifested no dread but bravely awaited the termination of the struggle.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to sorrowing relatives in their bereavement.

A story about Joseph & Catherine and their lineage.

This book of genealogical history primarily focuses on the Joseph Studer family and its direct lineage. Please Saskatchewan, Canada. Frank was well known around St. Benedict, Algona and Wesley, for his fiddle playing. In Canada he bear with us as we lift Joseph Studer out of birth order in an attempt to concentrate on his life and times.

Joseph Studer, as well as farming, also became a land agent, dealing in farm properties in several states. Some of his deals were made in the St. Cloud. Minnesota area. St. Cloud was a picturesque community on the Mississippi River about seventy miles northwest of Minneapolis. This area was very appealing to the land broker and ultimately Joseph decided to move there.

Joseph Studer moves from Iowa to St. Cloud Minnesota.

In 1900 Joseph and Catherine Studer made a momentous decision which would effect the future lives of many people. The area around St. Cloud was certainly not the high quality farming land Joseph was used to in Iowa. But it was a good place to raise a family and land was much cheaper here than in Wesley. Joseph decided that an equal amount of Minnesota land plus the added bonus of cash was worth the upheaval of leaving the rich Iowa soil behind. Actually, the move was not wholly without reason. Josephs sister, Margaret, moved to Avon, not more than fifteen miles from St. Cloud. Perhaps her land agent brother was able to assist her in securing a home in that area.

Most of the family accompanied Joseph and Catherine to Minnesota with the exception of Mary, who had married Ed Huber. She would remain in Iowa and help her husband run the farm. The first residence of the Studer family was a farm in Haven Township, just south of the Minnesota State Reformatory. Everyone did their share of work on the farm. It was during this time period that Joseph was involved in an accident that would eventually take the sight from one eye. While driving a horse drawn hayrack, Joseph was struck in the face by a tree branch that had bent back (possibly by one of the horses). Within several months he had totally lost sight in this eye. Because of this blindness, Joseph was unable to continue farming and left the farm to reside in the city of St. Cloud proper. A year or two later, while walking on an icy sidewalk, Joseph slipped and struck his head on a water hydrant. As a result he lost the sight in his second eye.

Joseph and Catherine Studer lived at several addresses in St. Cloud before building a home at 125 2nd Avenue Northeast. In spite of the disadvantages of his blindness, Joseph remained very active in the community. He involved himself in the local real estate market as well as dealing in granite monuments and even herbs. "Grandpa?! Is Alpenkrauter (the herb) made into a schnapps or a patented stomach soother?" Joseph eventually owned several investment properties on the East side of St. Cloud and was able to support himself quite well.

Catherine passed away in 1915 at the age of 65. It is believed that Catherine (Hoffer) Studer died of colon cancer. Her daughter Mary, sons William, Albert and Eugene also died of colon cancer. Several of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren also have had disease of the colon.

Joseph was able to survive her for sixteen years until he himself passed away in 1931 at the age of 81. Both Joseph and Catherine are buried in Calvary Cemetery, St. Cloud.

Joseph A. Studer farms in St. Cloud, Minnesota

Joseph Alexander Studer was the fourth son and fifth child of Joseph and Catherine Studer. Joe A. was Amandus Studers grandson.

At the time of his fathers untimely accident and subsequent lose of sight, Joseph was employed by A.A. Eich and Company, of St. Cloud. Joseph had married Margaret Dowling who was originally from Haven Township. Sometime after Joseph Sr. had moved into St. Cloud, Joe A. and his bride moved onto the family farm. Their first five children were born while the couple lived on this farm. They were: James (born 1905), Robert (born 1907), Charles (born 1909), Genevieve (born 1910) and Joseph M. (born 1913).

Following their tenure on the original Haven Township farm, Joe A. and Margaret moved their growing family to a series of different farms over a relatively short period of time. The first move was to a farm just south of St. Cloud, in Stearns County. It was located near Pleasant lake. They stayed at this location for only a brief period of time before they packed up and moved to a farm a few mile northeast of Sauk Rapids, in Benton County, Minnesota. About the time of the move from Pleasant lake to Sauk Rapids, the Studers had their sixth child, a boy who they named Vincent W. (Willard), born in 1915. After only one year at this location they moved again to a farm one quarter mile east. It was known as the Tarpenning farm. One year later they moved yet again to another far,

This era of the American experience was unique in many ways, not the least of which was the legal prohibition of the manufacture and use of alcoholic beverages. This meant Minnesota 13. This was the name for home distilled (brew) or moonshine, made in Minnesota. It was illegal. But with a weakening economy, an alternative source of income was needed.

this time a full one half miles East. It was called the Keikow farm. It was on the Keikow farm that the seventh child was born in 1917. Another son, a fine lad named Lawrence. He too was destined to move!

The next home of the wayfaring Studers was a farm several miles to the North, along the Sauk Rapids/Mayhew Lake road. It was known as the Sartell farm. Located three miles South of the Mayhew Lake Catholic Church, this was a large farm with a large red barn. It came complete with silo and spacious two-story white house. The human desire for occasional intoxication added to society's discomfort with that intoxication, led to a situation in which more people (rather than less) became criminals. Later the truck was converted and used in the transportation of local cattle to the stockyards of South St. Paul. Thus was born the Joe A. Studer and Sons Livestock Hauling Co. As the company prospered Joe A. and Margaret could finally begin to entertain their long time dream of "owning" their own farm. In 1929 they found

Joe A. Studer met the situation head on, doing the only thing that a proper God fearing Catholic could do under similar circumstances. He immediately started distilling the finest bourbon in Benton County. Through his relatives in Avon he secured the recipe and secrets of the still. He and his son Robert then cooked moonshine before and throughout the days of prohibition. The legendary still has been made available to the Benton County Historical Society by the children of Joseph and Margaret Studer.

moved into St. Cloud proper the next year, living in the home built by his father on 2nd Avenue Northeast. He lived there until his death in 1959. Always the loving grandparent, he had been caring for his son Richards children, while Richard worked and Evelyn was away attending her fathers funeral. It was late that evening that he was rushed to the hospital. Although he lived for several more months he never was the same gruff but adorable fellow this writer had grown to love. You see, I (Ric) was one of the grandchildren grandpa was taking care of. I was one of the last people to see him hale and hardy. Joe A. died from complications following a heart attack suffered during the Thanksgiving holiday of 1958. My grandparents are buried in the Mayhew Lake Catholic cemetery.
